SOCIAL MEDIA OUTCRY: GRADE 12 ART PROJECT

We are aware of a social media outcry after a video featuring one of our learners' final art projects went viral on social media yesterday. The project filmed and featured is part of a final submission to the IEB and was displayed in the school foyer as part of a year-end exhibition.

We have taken cognisance of the allegations made on social media; the matter is currently subject to an internal investigation. We want to reiterate that comments made is not an accurate reflection of our school and the situation referred to and we reserve our rights in this regard.

Curro welcomes all comments that are constructive and contribute to discussions in a meaningful manner. However, we do not condone cyber bullying, religious intolerance, hate speech, derogatory language, misrepresentation and comments reflecting negatively on our brand on any social media pages. Further questions can be referred to the school or engage@curro.co.za.
